

Copyright and Privacy Restrictions Edison National Historic Site Archives

The copyright law of the United States (Title 17, United States Code) governs the making of photocopies, audio re-recordings or other reproductions of copyrighted materials. The various state privacy acts govern the use of materials that document private individuals, groups, and corporations.

Under certain conditions specified in the law, libraries and archives are authorized to furnish a reproduction if the document does not infringe the privacy rights of an individual, group, or corporation. These specified conditions of authorized use include:

- non-commercial and non-profit study, scholarship, or research, or teaching
- as a NPS preservation or security copy
- as a research copy for deposit in another institution

If I, the researcher, later use a copy or reproduction for purposes in excess of "fair use," I, the researcher, am personally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement and agree to indemnify the NPS from any legal action as a result of the error. Edison National Historic Site's permission to obtain a photographic, xerographic, digital or other copy of a document or audio recording does not indicate permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, sell distribute, or prepare derivative works from this document or audio recording without first obtaining permission from the copyright holder(s) and from any private individual, group, corporation shown or otherwise recorded.

Permission to publish, exhibit, perform, reproduce, prepare derivative works from, sell, or otherwise distribute the item must be obtained by the researcher separately in writing from the holder of the original copyright (or if the creator is dead from his/her heirs) as well as from any individual(s), groups or corporations whose name, image, recorded words or private information (e.g. employment information) may be reproduced in the source material. The holder of the original copyright is not necessarily the National Park Service. The National Park Service is not legally liable for copyright, privacy, or publicity infringement when materials are wrongfully used after being provided to researchers for "fair use."

Edison National Historic Site reserves the right to refuse a copying order if fulfillment of the order is judged in violation of copyright or federal or state privacy or publicity laws. This institution also places restrictions on the use of cameras, photocopiers, scanners, and other duplication equipment in the research room.

I, the researcher, understand and agree to the above terms and will indemnify, defend, save, and hold the National Park Service harmless for all claims, demands, losses, or damages (including attorney's fees and expenses) arising out of any legal action, settlement, or adjustment resulting from my not having followed the guidelines provided above.
